

Read the Fine Print, State's Attorney General Warns Buyers

Simple precautions on the part of California consumers can save them money, while at the same time supporting the ethical business operator, declared Attorney General Stanley Mosk today in releasing a booklet on the rights of installment buyers.

The booklet, appropriately illustrated, and titled "Know Your Rights—When You Buy On Time," explains the new Unruh Installment Sales Act. The booklet details protective rights for consumers' installment contracts and revolving charge accounts.

Rules for consumers include: Before signing a contract read the "Notice to Buyer." Reject a contract with any blank spaces.

No additional service charges may be added to a contract.

There is a maximum legal charge on any unpaid balance. The consumer is entitled to a refund on payment in full of

57 Adult Courses, Many Of Them New, Announced

Fifty-seven courses, ranging from English and history to blue print reading and carpentry, will be offered in Torrance Adult Schools classes starting Monday, Sept. 19, according to Principal R. E. Collins.

Students who plan to take courses for high school credit may register daily from 1 to 5 p.m., starting Sept. 6, or between 7 and 9:30 on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 14 and 15. Registrations are at the adult school office, 2200 W. Carson St. Those who are not taking courses for credit may register at the first class meeting.

Enrollment this year is expected to exceed 8300 persons who signed up last year. Nearly 200 persons won high school diplomas last year.

Veterans may get high school diplomas by passing General Educational Development Tests and completing 15 credits in U.S. History and Government. Non-veterans over 21 years old may take the GED tests for partial completion of diploma requirements.

A 50-cent fee for students is charged, although there is no tuition. Students buy their own textbooks and other material needed for the class.

The courses scheduled this year include bookkeeping and general records keeping; industrial trigonometry; stenography; electronics, circulatory and schematics; piloting and aircraft safety; and family law.
